NEWS RELEASE

Web Portal launched on Port website

New link provides information-sharing capabilities for users

Piti, Guam, February 26, 2010: The Port Authority of Guam in conjunction with Parsons Brinckerhoff has developed and launched a web portal that will allow identified users to share information critical to the work being done at the island's commercial sea port.

The Port Authority of Guam has worked closely with Parsons Brinckerhoff to streamline all web-based information related to the Port Authority of Guam and its modernization program and has developed a web portal that users can access via the current Port Authority of Guam website.

The web portal is available only to certain groups such as employees, consultants, federal officials and some representatives in local agencies. Members of the media have their own level of access and can view listings of all deliverables submitted by consultant Parsons Brinckerhoff and can send alerts or messages via the website to request further information.

Media may access the site by going to www.portguam.com and click on "web portal" which is located in the "Information" section. Your pre-established email is webportal@portguam.com and your password is "newsmedia"
